1. Leverage

The effect of leverage allows you to trade larger amounts of money than deposit. However, leverage can either work on your side or against you. At the same time, psychological factor plays an important role. Some traders choose a big size of leverage to operate bigger sums. It creates the illusion of "unlimited profit opportunities without any risk", but actually, it is not always like that. A big volume of traded funds may bring great profit because of the leverage, but never forget that, along with the income, there is a big possibility to lose almost all deposit. Carefully analyse and choose the size of the leverage that will help you avoid a high level of risk.

2. High volatility of financial instruments

A big number of trading instruments that are traded on the Forex market, have a high intraday volatility, which can either bring profit or cause losses.

3. Technical risk (risk, connected with technical equipment)

There are some risks that may occur on the client's side, such as: failure of hardware and software, lost connection, problems with communication systems, misconfiguration of the trading platform etc.

4. Restrictions, imposed under legislation (administrative risks)

The client assumes all risk for the operations prohibited by the legislation of the country of his permanent residence. Each client has to notify the appropriate authorities about the level of income by himself.

5. Force majeure circumstances

The company is not responsible for losses or receiving earned funds that are not in full volume, in case any force majeure circumstances occur, namely nature disasters, extraordinary weather conditions, threat of war, act of terrorism, revolution, illegal actions of third parties, massive unrest, riot, decisions of state bodies etc.
